British Army and Navy Make Brilliant Showing at Quebec's Celebration.

BATTLEGROUND GIVEN

Plains Where Montcalm and Wolfe Fought to Be Memorial Reservation.

QUEBEC, July 24.—The Prince of Wales reviewed 20,000 soldiers and sailors on the Plains of Abraham today, after which he formally delivered to the Governor-General the title deed of the battleground of Montcalm and Wolfe as a permanent memorial reservation.

Field Marshal Lord Roberts, who assisted the Prince in reviewing the troops, excitedly hardly less interested than the Prince himself, as many of the men served under him in South Africa. The military forces engaged in the review numbered upwards of 12,000, while sailors and marines from the warships added another 8,000. In line were all branches of the service, including the Prince of Wales Own Rifles, the Queen's Own, of which Lord Roberts is honorary colonel. Each of the warships, including the New Hampshire, furnished a large quota of sailors and marines.

Dense crowds packed the roads leading to the plains making them almost impassable. The reviewing grounds were alongside Wolfe Cove, where the British General made his landing, and comprised the entire range of ground occupied by the armies of Wolfe and Montcalm, which were 1 day turned over by the Prince as a last memorial.

In order that equal honors might be paid both the French and British participants in the battle on the Plains the Prince today deposited wreaths on the monument of Wolfe and on that erected to "Aux Braves," the latter typifying the sturdy resistance which the French gave to British occupation.

Following the review the Prince of Wales was entertained at luncheon by the Mayor of Quebec. To-night he will attend the state ball given by the Government of the Province of Quebec at the Parliament buildings.

SEIZE TRUNKS OF SOCIETY WOMAN

Customs Men Declare 'Mrs.
Frederick Pearson Greatly Undervalued' Contents.

Uncle Sam's customs sleuths have started their annual summer seizure of the imports of society women. A dozen big trunks, each said to be filled with articles dear to the feminine heart and the property of Mrs. Frederick Pearson, of No. 3 West Fifty-seventh street, are in the customs building in Christopher street today undergoing examination. The trunks were taken from the pier of the North German Lloyd line in Hoboken yesterday, having arrived with Mrs. Pearson aboard the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse. Although Mrs. Pearson made a declaration to the effect that the contents of the trunks represented purchases estimated at $1,000 abroad, the customs officials declare a rough estimate of the real value might be placed at $5,000.

In the trunks when opened by command of Deputy Surgeon John M. Bishop were found rich Paris made gowns, wraps, fine furs and lingerie of exquisite design and texture. There was also a quantity of women's apparel valued many times above the figure established by its fair owner. There is to be a hearing at which Mrs. Pearson will have the privilege of telling in detail the cost of each article.

After leaving the steamship and when her trunks had been seized, Mrs. Pearson went to Bar Harbor with her children. Mrs. Pearson is well known in society there as well as in Newport and this city. She is the widow of Lieutenant-Commander Frederick Pearson, U. S. N., and her sons, E. Pennington Pearson and Frederick F. A. Pearson, are in Harvard University.

57 MEN TAKEN IN RAID TURNED LOOSE IN COURT.

Bolicemen Who Arrested Them
Saw no Bet's Placed in Alleged Poolroom.

Fifty-seven prisoners taken in a raid on an alleged poolroom in Henry street last night and three times as many of their friends jammed the Essex Market Police Court to overflowing today. David Weil, forty years old, of No. 510 West One Hundred and Twenty-fourth street, and James Murphy, thirty-two years old, of No. 510 Pearl street, were charged with having conducted the place. The others were charged with aiding and abetting.

Detective Goldhammer, of Deputy Commissioner Hanson's staff, testified that he cut in on a telephone wire leading into the place and heard a voice say: "Jim, put two dollars away for me on Cuban." He said he and the raiding party then entered the house and found a crowd of men in a room where there were racing charts for both the Brighton and Canadian tracks. Did you see any bets offered or placed?" asked Magistrate Walsh. "No," replied Goldhammer. "All discharged," ordered the Magistrate.

Is the Waltz Dying in New York? Not on Your "Merry Widow."

to waltz, is of American origin, and responsible for the waning popularity of the graceful dance denounced by Lord Byron and most Baptist clergymen.

One thing is certain, however. If the waltz is indeed dying New York needs it a very lively corpse. Never have dancing and dances been so popular. Never has Father Knickerbocker's dance card boasted so many names. Gertrude Hoffman and all the other Salomes have all dazzled him with their grace and startled him with their abandon. He has witnessed more plays in which the waltz figures than in any previous season.

Is the waltz dead? He should say, no! The Merry Widow forbid! The simple dance melody which has achieved the greatest popularity of any waltz since "The Blue Danube" is a complete refutation of the charge. Also the popularity of "The Waltz Dream" would refute it, if further proof were necessary.

The dislike which the delegates to the dance congress express for the two-step is, however, quite explicable. You have to learn to waltz if you want to do it acceptably, but anybody can two-step after seeing a two-stepping couple cross the floor once or twice.

One thing, however, the waltz has lost. That is the savor of the forbidden. A hundred years ago Lord Byron, the most conscienceless rone of his time, wrote a poetic denunciation of the waltz which John Calvin himself could not have surpassed. Nowadays the waltz is so universally the innocent pastime of light-hearted young people that even the majority of the clergy do not criticize it.

A very clever literary apropos of this phase of the waltz question appeared a few years ago:

Said the Reverend Jabez McCotten:
"The waltz of the devil's begotten."
Said young Mr. Fly:
"As he winked at Miss Bly:
"To the pure almost everything's rotten."

But if the waltz has quite properly ceased to appeal to the imagination it remains the natural expression in motion of the joy and poetry of life. It cannot, therefore, die so long as there are young hearts to beat more quickly as the violins murmur its plaintive cadence and young feet to keep time to its languorous measure.

The two-step is more popular with American young people than the waltz because they are more impulsive and less sentimental than Europeans. If they fall in love they do it in two steps, where the Europeans take three, and they shorten the path from courtship to the altar by as much. Half time, according to the American idea, is time enough, since it's all the time he has to devote to dancing.

The waltz is much more suitable to the dreamy German or to the emotional Frenchman than to the American.

The two-step is simply the daughter of the waltz. Naturally the daughter occasionally shocks the mother, but their family affection should hold them together.

The dancing masters' convention is worrying unnecessarily and should appreciate the danger of interfering in a family row.

Four Detectives Before His

Henry F. O'Connell, a deserter from the United States Army, was safe in the guard house on Governor's Island today after having fought four private detectives to a finish when they came upon him in his parents' home, No. 2346 eighth avenue, last night.

"I would rather die than go back to the army," O'Connell said when he was recaptured. O'Connell deserted from Fort Slocum five months ago.

FIVE-CENT CONEY FARE IN EFFECT UNTIL AUGUST 6

Company Withdraws Order and Will File New Plea
With Utilities Board.

HEARING ON TUESDAY.

Commission to Continue Sessions Until Matter Has Been Settled.

At the close of the first hearing of the investigation into the proposed advance fare on the Coney Island and Brooklyn Railroad, William N. Dyckman announced that the company withdrew its proposed change of fares on Monday next.

This change raised the Coney Island fare on week days to ten cents instead of five. Mr. Dyckman made the announcement after a consultation with President Huff.

The lawyer added that the company would file with the Commission on Monday morning an application to change its fare at a time within less than the thirty days required by the Commission. He would ask in this petition, he said, that the company be allowed to advance the fare ten days from Monday next, which would be Aug. 6.

Commissioner McCarrall agreed and said that the first hearing on this application for change of fare would be given next Tuesday morning, and that hearings would continue until the matter had been settled.

Prior to this decision Commissioner McCarrall and Elstis had listened to some evidence concerning the new fare schedule.

O. C. Semple, assistant counsel, represented the commission, and William Dyckman, counsel to the railroad, represented that corporation with members of the operating and finance departments.

S. M. Huff, president of the road, took the stand and declared the mileage of the route over the Williamsburg Bridge to Coney Island is a trifle over twelve miles. He said the company is allowed 16 per cent of the fare across the bridge and has been operating up to July 1 at 14 cents a day or approximately 4 per cent. Then, he said, the schedule was increased to 10 cents.

He had no figures as to the number of passengers carried or the receipts, but he was sure that under the present system the company was running at a loss. "We found we were losing money," he said.

"How long had you been operating under the old system of 5 cents on week days?"

"I can't tell how long. I think since 1901."

"And you have just discovered you are losing money?" asked Commissioner McCarrall.

"Well, it has been emphasized to us of late this form of traffic for 3 cents did not pay," said President Huff. "Our local traffic has paid us well, but now that we have made this special bid for through traffic and have got it we find that it does not pay, and so we are obliged to arise our through rates to 10 cents."

Admitting that the B. R. T. had been "accelerated" in the work of improving the bridge local service across the Williamsburg Bridge by the activity of the Public Service Commission, Arthur N. Dutton, superintendent of transportation for the B. R. T., testified at a hearing before Commissioner McCarrall today that the B. R. T. had meant well, but that it had been a good deal about this man Cooper and I decided to try his medicine. I got a treatment of The New Discovery and started taking it. All I can say is there never was anything like it. I have gained weight very fast. I eat three good meals a day and enjoy them all. I sleep well, feel as strong as ever in my life and am like another man altogether. I have no headaches and no indigestion. I know this to be the best medicine I have ever found and I believe it will help any one with stomach trouble."

Cooper, with his assistants, is meeting the public at the Riker store, Sixth avenue and Twenty-third street. His medicine is enjoying a tremendous sale in New York and he is meeting an immense number of people each day.

FOUND SWEETHEART WITH RIVAL AND SHOT HER.

Girl's Father in Frenzy Tries to Kill the Prisoner, and Is Put Under Arrest.

NORFOLK, Va., July 24.—Finding his sweetheart, Miss Amanda Morse, promiscuous on the Camptostella Bridge with his rival, Benjamin Gilbert opened fire with a pistol on her last night about 10 o'clock. Two bullets took effect in the young woman's back. William Mitchell, who was with the young woman, was unarmed, but kept Gilbert in sight and caused his arrest. Miss Morse has only a slight chance to recover.

The police arrested C. W. Morse, the girl's father, who wanted to kill Gilbert while he was under arrest.

Here's a Noiseless Mechanical Gun That Fires 50,000 Shots a Minute

It Is a Powderless Machine Invented
by a Young Englishman,
Who Offers It to Uncle Sam, and
Who Says a 6-inch Model Costing Only $800 and Weighing Only 500 Pounds Can Be Operated From an Automobile.

WILLIAM PATTEN AND HIS NEW GUN.

Gen. Sherman said "War is hell." But that was two generations gone by. Invention has taken wings with time.

William Patten is demonstrating a model of a quick firing gun in the basement plumbing shop at 270 West One Hundred and Thirty-sixth street which promises to make his Satan's Majesty's resort a restful retreat by comparison if it is ever put in operation. It can shoot 50,000 half-inch steel bullets a minute, and kill at 2,000 feet.

This marvelous machine is noiseless, powderless, and as simple as a child's toy. The little ten-inch model in a test today hit a target forty feet away, every ball striking within a radius of five-eighths of an inch. The 400 buckshot looked like a white thread as they passed through the air.

A six-foot gun, on the same model, weighing 500 pounds, and capable of being transported on an automobile, could do more deadly execution in a few minutes than the two great armies of Grant and Lee accomplished at Gettysburg in three days. There is no limit to its capacity. It can discharge bullets faster than it can be fed.

Like poets, inventors are born. To the mind barren of the spark of mechanical genius schooling is vain. At the age of ten William Patten began to contrive at his home in England. At eleven he perfected a motor. Every year since in his twenty-seven he has been marked by an invention of note.

Bursting Fly Wheel Gave Him Idea.

Patten came to New York four years ago with the idea of the quick-firing gun in his mind. Just before his departure from England he had witnessed the breaking of a fly wheel. He made a study of the wheel and the cause of the accident, and he discovered the great centrifugal force which is the secret of his new gun—if anything about it can be called secret, for it is so simple a child could understand it. It has only ten parts, and all are exposed.

An Evening World reporter and photographer called on Patten today. They found a tall, slender, smooth-faced young fellow in a dark little plumbing shop owned by his brother.

"Oh, you want to see the gun?" he said.

"Here it is," and he picked up a little brass cylinder from a bench. At first glance it looked something like a new idea in the way of a meat grinder.

"I'll show you how it works," said Patten, and he fastened it to a desk. At the opposite end of the room was a target. Patten took a handful of heavy buckshot, filled the bullet horn he began to turn the crank. In a second a string of bullets flashed across the room and hit the target.

"This machine does not require powder, and it cannot get hot," Patten said. "A six-foot gun will weigh only 500 pounds and cost only $800. My gun can fire more bullets than it can be fed. There has been lot of talk about getting a gun to fire 1,000,000 balls an hour, but where would they get the 1,000,000 balls?"

The Maxim rattling gun, now in use by the United States Army, requires shells and can only be used for fifteen minutes. During that fifteen minutes it has to be cooled by water. The Maxim gun weighs more than twice as much as mine and costs twice as much, to say nothing of the cost of the shells. In this we use only bullets.

"While this gun could shoot 50,000 bullets a minute, it is doubtful if it would ever be called upon to do that. It is not likely that an army's facilities for supplying the ammunition would be equal to more than 10,000 or 20,000.

Can Be Hung So As to Sweep Any Field.

"A six-foot gun would require a on Henry Goldberg.

Henry Goldberg, convicted yesterday in the Court of Special Sessions for being a "Fagin," was today given an extra eleven months in Sing Sing and a $500 fine to work out, by Judge Rosalsky, in the Court of General Sessions.

When the Judge read in last night's Evening World of Goldberg's teaching five boys how to steal, he remembered having suspended sentence on him some weeks ago on a charge of grand larceny.

"Bring Goldberg before me," said Judge Rosalsky when he reached his court this morning.

After learning that Goldberg had been given eleven months and $500 fine he duplicated the punishment for the offense laid before him, which was a larceny of property of the Adams Express Company.

"BISHOP" ROBINSON IS A SCHOOLMA'AM

Shepherdess Arrested for
"Drawing the Dragon"
Teaches in No. 40.

"Bishop" Elizabeth E. Robinson, of "the First Assembly of Christ" of Williamsburg, will probably hear from the Board of Education when the case for "outraging public decency" and "maintaining a place for lewd, obscene and indecent purposes" is disposed of in the courts. She is a teacher and a thirty-eight year old. According to the school directory she teaches in Public School No. 40, on Fifteenth street, near Fourth avenue.

Miss Robinson's mother lives at No. 45 Eighth street, Brooklyn, but the "Bishop" prefers to live at No. 179 Palisade street with the shepherdess of the Rock, Sarah F. Carter.

Summer Tips for Women.

Next to the white, pale shades with a very light shrimp pink as one of the leaders are extensively used in the Eastern resorts.

This is surely the age of the slender woman. She predominates at all the resorts this season. Over at Atlantic City it is said all the fat women stayed away and by rate, they are for, as is plain to be seen. What is the secret?

Slender ladies of the 400 have found a new way to quickly take off the extra fat and hold it in check without inconvenience. They have thankfully given up dieting, exercising and the miscellaneous drugging so long in vogue among the overfat for a simple mixture that is said to give remarkable results, owing to its control of the fat-forming operations of the system. The formula is Marmola, one-half ounce; Fluid Extract Cassia, Aromatic, one-half ounce; Syrup simple, three and one-half ounces; dose a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime. Entlastastic claims claim that this mixture will reduce fat at the rate of a pound a day without causing wrinkles, and has the additional merit of being perfectly harmless. The ingredients are inexpensive and obtainable at any drug store. In order to get the best results, however, the Marmola must be fresh, and so care should be taken to eat it in the original unbroken half-ounce package.

MRS. MACKAY TO RUN AGAIN.
Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay has informed a friend that she is to be a candidate for re-election to the Board of Education of the City of New York, having nearly finished her term of three years and having made a good record.

It was known that if there was any show of a contest she would not run again, but there is no opposition whatever, and John F. Remsen, who was her running mate three years ago, will also be in the field, and the election of such seems certain. They have worked faithfully for the school.
